Education Pizza & Friends ZERO-TEN PARK MANILA

Got a brilliantly dumb idea?

Pitch it.

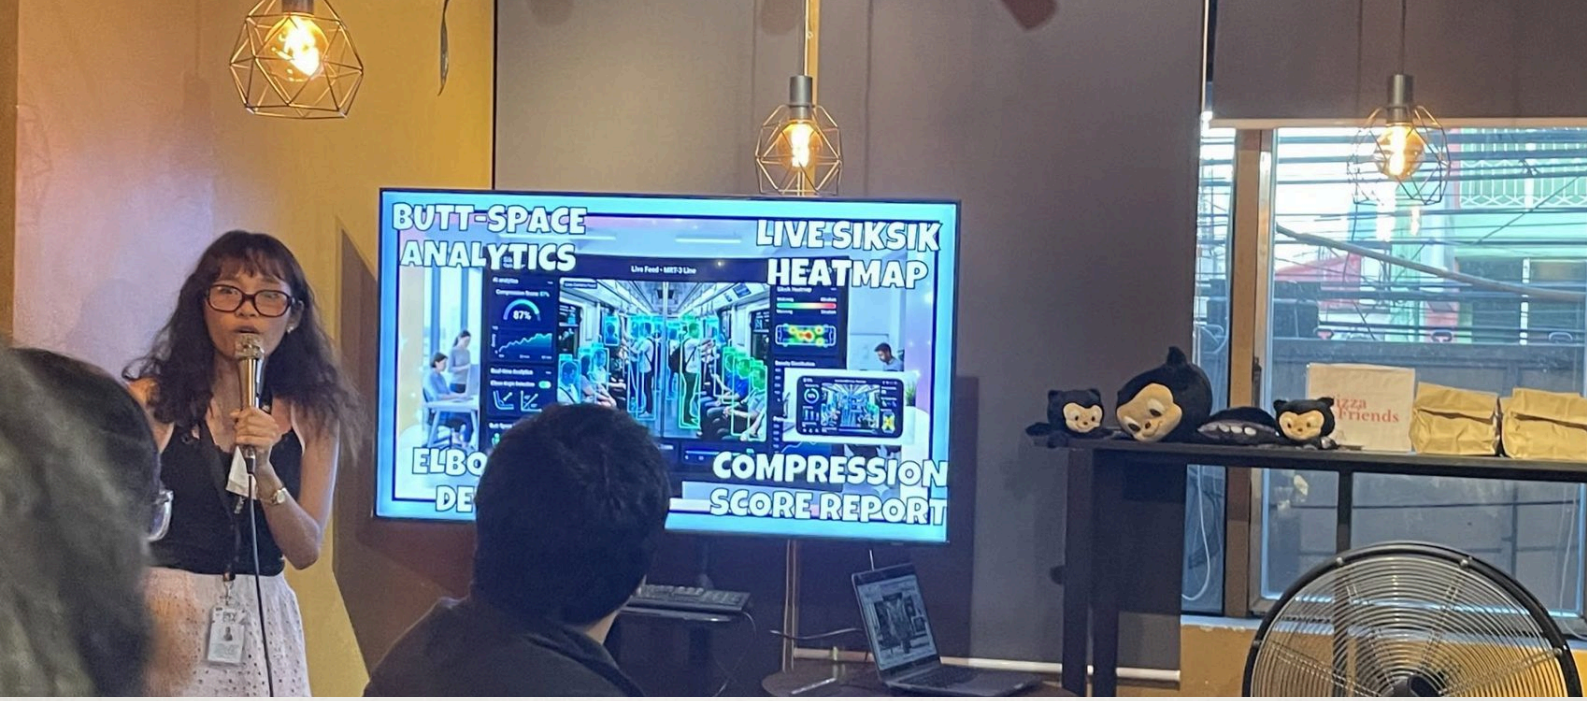

The Anti-Brainrot Hackathon

A note for our pitchers

This year's theme: cure brain rot. Badly. Use technology that shouldn't be used for it, and sell it to someone who doesn't want to be cured.

Saturday, Oct 17, 2026, at Hack & Yap Episode II, Zero-Ten Park, Legazpi Village, Makati

Butt-space analytics for the MRT, Episode 1. It placed third.

Cure brain rot. Badly.

The Anti-Brainrot Hackathon is a pitch night for brilliantly dumb ideas. Unserious on stage, organized everywhere else. No sprint, no all-nighter, and no code. Just you, five minutes, and a room that wants to laugh with you.

Bring a tech product, or the concept of one, that has > a cure for brain rot that probably won't work,

> technology that shouldn't be used for it,
> and a user who doesn't want to be cured.

Past work is welcome. Concepts with no prototype are welcome. Built things are welcome too, as long as you pitch them instead of running them. Your pitch is the product.

Into it? Register for Hack & Yap on Luma, say yes to the hackathon question, and pitch us your idea in a sentence or two. We'll tell you if you're in.

John & Simonee
Pizza & Friends

P.S. Brilliantly dumb only. Brainrot not welcome.

Low cortisol dates and postponed deadlines. Same podium.

Episode 1 ran on February 28 in Pasay. Seven teams pitched, the room voted on paper, and these three took home prizes.

1ST · NEIL CASAS

Low Cortisol Date Input

2ND · DANILO CASIM JR., ROVIC VILLARALVO, KYLE DEXTER PANGANIBAN

Deadline Postponer

3RD · LADY DIANE CASILANG

Buttspace Analytics, a live seat-space tracker for the MRT

A full room, and pizza on the big screen.

Certificates, a plushie, and a lot of thumbs up.

The bar is low. Go under it.

How it works.

5	10	0
minutes per pitch	pitch slots	lines of code

Register on Luma. Sign up for Hack & Yap, say yes to the hackathon question, and tell us your idea in a sentence or two. Rough is fine. Teams of up to 3, or solo. Your teammates register too.

We pick, not the clock. Slots are not first come, first served. We pick the ideas we think the room will enjoy most. First-time pitchers get a little extra love.

Confirm or lose it. If you're picked, we'll message you. Reply to confirm, or your slot goes to the next idea.

Any format, no code. Cartolina, Manila paper, props, a skit, a song, interpretive dance. No terminals, no IDEs, no GitHub, no live demos of running software.

Five minutes, hard stop. The timekeeper is law. When the alarm sounds, you're done. Pitch order is drawn at random on the day.

Keep it safe for work. If your idea might kill the vibe of a relaxed room, pick another one. Organizers may ask you to swap or drop an idea.

Episode 1, Pasay. Fifty people, one mic, and a room that leaned in.

How you win.

Everyone votes. After the last pitch, everyone in the room, pitchers and audience, gets one paper ballot and writes down one winner by pitch number and project name.

Top 3 win prizes. Two counters tally the ballots in the open. If there's a tie for a top-3 spot, we run a quick re-vote with only the tied pitches on the ballot.

Be kind. Be kind to the idea and to the person pitching it. No heckling, unless the heckling is part of the pitch.

Your afternoon

1:30	Doors open, first pizza
2:00	Opening, partners, human bingo
2:25	Slides Party talks
3:25	Second pizza, last prop check
3:55	Anti-Brainrot Hackathon. You're on.
4:50	Awards
5:00	Group photo, then hang out until 6:30

The boring (but useful) bits.

What you get

Five minutes on stage in front of about fifty people

Prizes for the top 3

Photos of you mid-pitch from our photographer

Two rounds of pizza

A room full of people who will ask about your idea after

What we need from you

On Luma, a yes to the hackathon question and your idea in a sentence or two

If you're picked, a reply confirming you'll be there

On Oct 17, be at Zero-Ten Park by 1:30 PM

Your props, if any, and a heads-up if you need a table, extension cord, projector, or speaker

Teams of up to 3, or solo

Episode 1 awards. Certificates, a plushie, and at least one thumbs up per person.

Log off.
Come pitch.

Questions, half-baked ideas, and prop emergencies are all welcome.
Register at luma.com/ekf47d40.

JOHN YUMUL, CO-FOUNDER
johnyumul.ph@gmail.com

SIMONEE MARIQUIT, CO-FOUNDER
semariquit@gmail.com

WEB
joinpizza.fun

SOCIAL
@pizzaplusfriends

Pizza & Friends Education ZERO-TEN PARK MANILA